"Creating YOUR Path to Leadership"

Darrel Hackett

Senior Vice President, Head of Small Business Banking
Harris Bank

Darrel Hackett is Harris Bank's Senior Vice President and Head of Small Business Banking. Today he spends his time developing banking strategies and building new customer relationships, but he wasn't always a banker. His route to leadership in banking included stops in engineering and management consulting. Everyone's career path takes different turns, but a few key concepts should remain the same - staying true to yourself, following your passion, and constantly challenging yourself. Darrel looks forward to sharing his thoughts on what he's learned on his journey, and he hopes to provide food for thought on where you are, and where you want to be, in defining your path to leadership.

"You Know You've Made it When?"

Bobbi Marsteller

Bob Vivant Media

Right when everyone started to worry about keeping their jobs, Bobbi Marsteller left hers. Climbing the corporate ladder can be as exhilarating as it is stressful at times. And yes, the view from the top can be sweet. But have you ever wondered what your life might be like if you let go of the ladder and allowed yourself to slide to the bottom and start anew? Two years after saying good bye to corporate life, Bobbi, a recovering ambition addict, will share how the climb can be far richer than the view from the top.
